

Student Job at EDLAB!

We're looking for an enthusiastic student who has an affinity with creative writing for online purposes. If you are a fluent English writer, who has an interest in developments and innovation in education, and if you like browsing through webpages, magazines and social platforms for input, then we're looking for you!

You'll be working for the Maastricht University Institute for Education Innovation (EDLAB). Your tasks consist of translating (online) articles, input from colleagues, news etc. into readable and exciting online content, and maintaining the website of EDLAB. You are available for 4 hours per week (flexible; no fixed working hours) and you don't mind working on the website outside office hours. You can write well in English, you're an efficient communicator and respond quickly to requests from senior staff. You feel responsible for your tasks and you are familiar with WordPress and the professional use of social media.

Do you think this job might be something for you? Then send your CV to nicolai.manie@maastrichtuniversity.nl before May 6, 2015.
